20,000 Arkansans Eligible for U. S. Aid on Pensions

But State First Has to Find Its Half of Public Tax Funds

NO TOWNSEND BILL

Federal Inclusion of $200 Per Month for Negroes Kills It

WASHINGTON—(P)—The administration late Saturday sent to the capitol an estimate that less than a million persons would be eligible for old age pensions and that the total cost to the states would be about $111,000,000 annually. Some congressmen have estimated that the pension plan would cost around $150,000,000 yearly.

The table, drawn up by the Economic Security Committee, was based on the number of persons above 65 who are receiving relief in the states, plus those getting old age pensions in states that have pension systems.

The committee's figures showed 736,342 persons above 65 on federal relief rolls, plus 179,557 who are receiving old age pensions from the 21 states in which the laws are in effect. Laws have been passed in seven other states but are not yet in effect.

Census figures for 1930 showed 6,634,000 persons in the country over 65. Some witnesses before the congressional committees have estimated that half of these would be eligible for pensions. Some members of congress figured that on this basis the yearly cost to the states would be around $500,000,000.

20,681 in Arkansas

WASHINGTON—(P)—The Economic Security Committee estimates that 20,681 persons in Arkansas would be eligible for old age pensions under President Roosevelt's social security program.

A table prepared by the committee showed that less than a million persons in the nation would be eligible for the pensions based on the number of persons above 65 who are receiving relief in the various states, plus those who are getting old age pensions in states that have pension systems.

The committee's figures showed that 20,681 aged citizens were on relief in Arkansas and that the cost to that state if $10 were paid monthly to each person would total $1,241,000.

If each person was paid $15 monthly, the cost to Arkansas would be $1,861,000, while it would cost that state $2,482,000 if each person received $20 monthly. A $25 monthly pension would result in a cost of $3,102,000, while $30 monthly paid on relief basis would total $3,723,000.

Measures were said by officials to be destined to provide legislatures in the 20 states that have no old age pension laws with measures which they can push through promptly after enactment of the federal law so that they may obtain federal aid in caring for their aged.

Townsend Bill Blows Up

WASHINGTON—Out of the smoke-filled cloak rooms of congress and down the corridors of the capitol went the confident work Saturday that the boys on the hill had put the political Townsend bill to rest.

City Voters to Go to Polls Tuesday

Negroes Excluded by Primary Rules, Committee Holds

And White Poll Tax List Will Be Strictly Ahered to by Judges

MAYOR, ALDERMEN

4 Candidates for Mayor, 15 Seek Four Aldermanic Posts

Last-minute pleas by candidates were being made Monday as citizens of Hope prepared to go to the polls Tuesday to elect a mayor, four aldermen and a city treasurer.

The City Democratic Central committee announced Monday that negroes would be prohibited from voting. The rules of the Democratic party, according to the committee, provide that only white persons can be members of the Democratic party.

The committee also called attention to the law with respect to voters whose names do not appear on the certified list of poll tax payers.

In such cases, the committee said, a copy of the poll tax receipt of the one offering to vote should be filed with the judges of the election and returned by them with the other election returns.

In regard to those who have become of age, and are offering to cast their maiden vote, an affidavit should be filed with the judges of the election setting forth the fact that the one offering to vote has become of age.

Voting Places

Voting places were announced as: Ward One—Arkansas Bank building; Ward Two—Frisco depot; Ward Three—556 Service station; Ward Four—City hall.

Twenty candidates are in the race.

The tickets—Dr. J. H. Weaver, R. A. Boyett, Albert Graves, J. W. Parsons, For city treasurer—Charles Rayner.

For alderman, Ward One—S. C. Bandy, L. Carter Johnson, J. R. Williams.

For alderman, Ward Two—F. Y. Trimble, S. M. Sutton, Kenneth G. Hamilton, Luther N. Garner.

For alderman, Ward Three—Theo. P. Witt, A. C. Irwin, Roy Johnson, E. P. Slocum.

For alderman, Ward Four—J. A. Sullivan, C. E. Taylor, Charles Frohlich, G. P. Casey.

Committee Resolution

The committee's resolution follows: "The City Democratic Central Committee has received numerous inquiries with respect to negroes voting in the City Democratic Primary Tuesday next. The committee has no authority to make or change any of the rules of the party or any law governing the election.

The rules of the Democratic Party provide that only white people can be members of the Democratic Party, and this rule has been recently construed by the court and upheld. Therefore, under the rules of the Democratic Party negroes cannot vote in the Primary election.

It is the desire of the Committee to render any service it can to the end that the Democratic Primary will be held in accordance with the rules of the party and the law; and we earnestly request the assistance of all election officials and all Democrats to aid in carrying out such rules and regulations. We, also, wish to call attention to the law with respect to Democrats offering to vote whose names do not appear on the certified list of poll tax payers. In such cases a copy of the poll tax receipt of the one offering to vote, certified to by the County Clerk should be presented and filed with the judges of the election, and returned by them with the other election returns.

Relative to those who have become of age since the time for assessing taxes next before the date of the Primary, an affidavit should be filed with the judges of the election setting forth the fact that the one offering to vote has become of age, since the time for assessing taxes next before the date of the Primary.

Anyone who has voted at either of the two general elections held next before the date of the Primary for any candidate other than a Democratic nominee is not entitled to vote.

Respectfully,
Ed Van Sickle,
Tom Coleman,
A. L. Taylor,
W. A. Lewis,

Governor 'Hands Off' Share-Cropper Fight

The Hope High School basketball team will go to Waldo Tuesday night for a return engagement with that team. Waldo defeated Hope a week ago on the Bobcat court, 34 to 32.

The Pine Bluff school has ruled state basketball courts for the past two years, the only team in the state's history to do so.

The Bobcats defeated Laneburg in a game played Saturday night at the high school gymnasium.

Relief Bill Still Under Senate Fire

McCarran Current-Wage Amendment Debated in Committee

WASHINGTON—(P)—The senate appropriations committee voted Monday to reconsider the McCarran prevailing-wage-amendment to the relief bill, but deferred the final vote until later in the day.

President Roosevelt Sunday was described by a high ranking Democratic senator as "obviously worried" over what may happen to his $4,880,000,000 work relief bill in the senate appropriations committee.

The president brought pressure to bear on senate Democrats to eliminate the McCarran amendment, which would increase payments of relief works. Over the week-end he conferred with several senators in a move to strengthen administration forces in the committee.

Word that insistence on the amendment by congress would wreck the president's plan to end the dole were to be delivered to the committee Monday by Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, chairman, upon the request of the executive.

One senator said that Mr. Roosevelt was "doing everything possible to get his bill through without much change and has intimated that he would not approve a measure that will not permit him to carry out his program."

This senator said that a shift in votes on the McCarran amendment was certain with Senator McAdoo, Democrat, California, who first supported it, then moved for reconsideration Monday, and Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, lined up by the president against the proposition.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—It made hardly the slightest difference whether or not this nation entered the World Court. Except for a few rabid isolationists, nearly everyone in Washington agreed on that. The sound and fury in the Senate over the issue was a sort of town joke—even on Capitol Hill.

But the court's decision is a matter of grave concern to the New Dealer, because of certain menacing shadows it casts before Mr. Roosevelt, the great popular leader, is confronted by other rabble-rousers with large popular followings of their own.

For the first time, the administration has been licked through efforts of a combination of leaders whom its members call "demagogues," "crackpots," "blatherskites" and similarly uncomplimentary names. It may not be the last time.

These movements, well informed said, have colonial ends in view. Whether they indicate a forthcoming expedition against Ethiopia or the strengthening of colonial forces was not revealed.

The latest conflict, the statement said, was on the border of Italian Somaliland and Ethiopia with Italian native troops taking part.

Further strained relations between the two countries resulted from the fresh outbreak. Others had caused but to lodge protests with the League of Nations.

Hauptmann's Closing Argument Returns to 'Inside Job' Theory

Long Flemington (N. J.) Trial Approaches Jury as Opposing Attorneys Conclude Pleas

Copyright Associated Press

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(P)—Reverting to their original contention of an "inside job" counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann Monday accused Betty Gow and the late Ollie Whately of complicity in the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Pleading to save Hauptmann from the electric chair as the perpetrator of the crime, Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, said Colonel Lindbergh was "stabbed in the back by those who worked for him."

Reilly charged the ladder was a "plan" and that the baby had not been taken through the window.

Reilly's summation to the jury followed that of Prosecutor Anthony Hauck, who summed up the case for the state.

Hauck contended the state had proved Hauptmann guilty.

Testimony Ends

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(P)—The case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the Lindbergh baby murder was completed late Saturday, five weeks and three days after it began.

With Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, the baby's grandmother, as one of the witnesses, the case ended—except for the legal oratory which will last through Monday and part of Tuesday—on a note of sharp contradiction.

The final day's testimony concerned itself not with Hauptmann, the Bronx carpenter accused of horrible crime, but with two persons dead—little Isidor Fisch and the Morrow maid servant, Violet Sharpe, who committed suicide.

When it was not seeking to show that neither Fisch nor Miss Sharpe had any guilty knowledge of the kidnap murder of March 1, 1932, the state in

The Parent Teachers association of Hope observed Founders Day on Saturday afternoon in the high school auditorium.

Miss Frances Snyder, accompanied by Mrs. J. C. Carlton, sang "Eosira," by Curran.

The announcer then asked the radio audience to turn on the television attachment and view a pageant, "The Beautiful Ideal." SOLONS RECONVENE

Executive Announces He Will Sign Bill If It Is Passed

LITTLE ROCK—(P)—Governor Futrell Monday told a temperance committee, calling upon him to urge that no change be made in the state prohibition laws, that he would sign a liquor control bill if one were passed.

But he added: "If conditions do not change for the better within nine months thereafter, I will call the legislature back to repeal the law."

The governor said conditions are intolerable in Arkansas and he proposed through a state liquor monopoly, to oust the bootleggers and help mould public sentiment toward temperance and law enforcement.

The governor said his personal attitude has always been favorable to temperance.

Session Reconvenes

Governor Futrell's warning that any change in the refunding law would invalidate the agreement with the bondholders, and protests against legalization of liquor sales and gambling, echoed in the ears of the legislators as they returned to work Monday.

The Hampton horse racing measure was listed as special order of business when the house reconvened at 1 p. m., while the senate, returning to work an hour later, had word from the authors of half a dozen revenue proposals that they intended to press for action during this week.

Reconvene Monday

LITTLE ROCK—Protests against legalization of liquor sales and gambling are being directed to the governor and legislature from many parts of the state, and those supporting such legislation indicate they will seek early action in the General Assembly.

Governor Futrell Sunday said that the taxpayers could not possibly meet the expected demands of the federal government for Arkansas to participate in the proposed plan for old age pensions.

The governor also warned that any change in the refunding law would have the effect of invalidating the agreement under which millions of dollars worth of bonds have been surrendered for refunding.

The house concerns at 1 p. m. Monday with the Hampton measure to legalize pari-mutuel betting on horse races as a special order. The senate, which will meet at 2, probably will precede with consideration of the Hall sales tax bill, already altered in several respects.

In several Little Rock churches Sunday, resolutions were presented at the request of Miss Eleanor Nell, first president of the Arkansas Women's Christian Temperance Union, calling upon Governor Futrell "to exercise your utmost efforts and influence towards having the question of licensing liquor selling and gambling submitted to a direct vote of the people."

Proposes A Substitute Tax

The Rev. B. C. Few, pastor of the First Methodist church of Cotton Plant, told his congregation Sunday night that forces opposed to liquor and racing should not content themselves with protesting but should come forward with "constructive proposals."

He suggested that the legislature, instead of legalizing whisky and horse race betting, impose a tax of 50 per cent upon all interest in excess of four per cent on loans. This, the Rev. Mr. Few estimated, would produce from 5,000,000 to $6,000,000 revenue and, however, would result in lower interest rates, so that many who are unable or unwilling to pay prevailing charges would be induced to borrow money and use it for productive purposes thereby hastening economic recovery.

Informed of the pastor's suggestion, Governor Futrell remarked that "we would have to change our constitution to do anything like that. The Rev. Mr. Few said that a movement to support his suggestion probably would get under way within a few days."

Patmos junior boys, after fighting their way to the finals, lost to Guernsey, 26 to 17, in the championship bout.

An all-county girls team was selected by the various coaches. The team: Forwards—Foster of Patmos; Griffith of Guernsey; Nell Mayton of Patmos; Hughes of Guernsey; Foster of Guernsey; Wilma Mayton of Patmos; Grove, tied for the position of guard.

From the Citizens Protective League of Independence county came a formal protest to the governor and the legislature against licensing of liquor and gambling to produce revenue which, it was conceded, is sorely needed.

SILKEN SPINDLES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GALE HENDERSON, pretty and 22, works in a silk mill. She and her 19-year-old brother, PHIL, support their invalid father.

STEVE MEYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.

Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in the army to enter the mill.

Gale disappears before he learns her name. VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to entice the girl.

Gale goes on an errand for a neighbor, MRS. O'CONNOR, which takes her into the country. It is a stormy night and she misses the return bus.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII

THE coupe came to a stop and the door opened. A man's voice called, "Want a ride east? Be glad to take you."

Gale stepped forward. She couldn't stand there in the sleet and cold for four hours; that was certain. She tried to see the man in the car but his face was in darkness.

"I do want to get home," she said. "I missed the bus."

"Yes, I saw the driver pull away and leave you. That was a mean trick. Say—All at once the man was out of the car, coming toward her. "Why, Gale Henderson!" he exclaimed. "I didn't know it was you! What in the world are you doing here?"

Gale looked up at Brian Westmore. She hoped he would think it was the cold that made her lips tremble as they did. She said, "I didn't recognize you either."

"But you mustn't stand here shivering. Here—get into the car," he helped her into the coupe, and a moment later was beside her. "Say, I'm glad I came along just when I did," he went on. "It's a rotten afternoon—you shouldn't be out in it."

Gale smiled. "Believe it or not, mister," she said, "I was waiting for a bus—and I'd have had quite a wait, too. The next one isn't due until 3:30."

He said, concerned, "You're cold, aren't you? Take my coat—"

She shook her head. "Oh, no," she said, "I'm warm now. Really I am! Tell me, do you always go around rescuing maidens in distress? I believe this is the second time you've saved me from an icy death."

Brian laughed. "As a career," he said, "I can't think of anything I'd like better than rescuing maidens in distress. Would you give me a letter of recommendation or testimonial?"

"I certainly would. Any time you want it."

They drove in silence for a few moments. Then Brian asked, "Have you given up skating? I've been out once or twice and looked for you but I didn't see you."

"I've—been busy," Gale told him.

SO he'd missed her. He'd looked for her. Gale went on, without raising her eyes, "Besides, I thought the ice was too soft."

"It has been the last day or two. This sleet and wind will probably make it so rough it will be ruined. That's the trouble with skating on a river. A week or so of smooth ice is about all you can hope for all winter."

Gale said, "Yes. Last year there wasn't any."

"That so? Last year—" They turned broke off as they turned a corner. Brilliant electric lights gleamed ahead. "Listen," Brian said, "let's have some sandwiches and coffee. I'm starved and you wouldn't keep a starving man from food, would you?"

"No, I wouldn't want to do that."

Brian turned into the drive before the lighted building. Wind howled and the sleet stung her face as Gale stepped from the car. Laughing, running, they made for the doorway.

"The Blue Moon Barbecue" was a long, low structure with a counter running the length of the room. Its surface was polished and scrupulously clean. Brian and Gale were the only customers. They sat on high stools before the counter and brought them steaming cups of coffee and thick, hot sandwiches.

Gale said, "I didn't know I was hungry but I certainly must have been."

"Good!" Brian set down his cup. "This place is all right. I've stopped here before." He paused, then went on, "You know you seem to have a way of disappearing into thin air. I was beginning to think I'd never see you again."

"I've been busy," Gale said for the second time.

"Wish I could say as much."

most effective cosmetic a girl uses. It is to the complexion what correct accessories are to a costume—the finishing touch that adds the right suave note of chic.

You should choose powder that matches your skin. Generally speaking, most people need a shade with faintly pinkish or rose-colored lights in it. However, if your complexion comes under the heading of creamy, showing definite yellowish tones, by all means get one of the rashes that is more yellow than pink.

When you select face powder, first remove all makeup, ask the saleswoman to put a bit of the color you intend to buy on a piece of clean cotton and then carefully powder one side of your face. Look at yourself in a mirror. Except for a dull, smoother finish on the powdered cheek, both sides of your face should look alike. In other words, you use powder to improve but certainly not to change what Nature has given you.

Unless you can remember to wash a powder puff at least twice a week, better use clean cotton pads. After you have applied foundation lotion and cream rouge, dip the pad in powder and press a lavish amount against face and throat. Don't be afraid to put on too much and be sure to press the pad hard against your skin. Leave all of it on for at least three minutes and then dust off the excess with the reverse side of the cotton.

Gold Decision Is Again Postponed

U. S. Supreme Court Passes Another Monday in Deliberation

WASHINGTON.—Anxiety of the financial world and the Roosevelt administration was prolonged for at least another week when the clerk of the Supreme Court announced that there would be no decision in the $69,000,000 gold clause cases Monday.

This was the second time that the justices, after their weekly deliberative conference in a closely guarded basement chamber of the capitol, had announced a ruling in the momentous cases could not be expected on a Monday. Saturday a week ago Chief Justice Hughes shattered all precedents by issuing a bulletin, but last Saturday Clerk Elmore Cropley merely told correspondents he was authorized to say there would be no decision Monday.

The conference of the justices was not concluded until 4:52 p. m. when Mr. Cropley was summoned. When the conference began at noon, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings was in conference at the White House with President Roosevelt. He declined to discuss their conversation, but it was learned that steps to be taken in event of an adverse decision was the question. The administration is prepared for such a contingency with legislation which might be rushed through congress within a few hours.

conceding that entry or non-entry into the World Court was utterly unimportant, are whispering that there was drummed up the same type of nationalist fervor which Hitler and Mussolini used so effectively in attaining power.

People generally hadn't been excited about the court. But a straw man was set up and they were whipped to a fury against it. And some New Dealers insist it gives them the creeps.

Officials figure that "demagogues" such as Coughlin, Long, and Dr. Townsend will be encouraged to new efforts.

Townsend, the old age pension man, had nothing to do with the court fight. But thousands of telegrams against the court contained grim threats similar to those with which his followers assure congressmen they'll be "cleaned out" in 1936 unless they espouse his plan.

Strategy Was Wrong

If the vote had been forced by Friday or Saturday instead of being allowed to go over to Tuesday, giving Coughlin a chance to take the air, the court protocols would have been ratified.

Administration leaders were overconfident and felt it would be a smart thing not to let the Senate act a too early start on the administration's unpopular five-billion-dollar relief bill. Now hardly anybody thinks the idea was so smart.

The state Department crowd is discouraged—and its feeling is shared at the White House—because of the unquestionable hampering effect the defeat will have on Roosevelt's efforts for international co-operation and world peace.

Almost any bid Roosevelt makes in that direction now will be met by cynical European suggestions that i

The munitions control treaty proposed by Secretary Hull, the assertion of Norman Davis at Geneva that America would "consult" with other nations in efforts to stave off war, and current moves toward a new neutrality policy designed to keep us out of war are all now squirming under a wet blanket.

It all piles up into considerable irony because it's so commonly admitted by detached observers that we had nothing to lose and little to gain by entering the court.

Belief that entry would be little more than a gesture of good will was responsible for the lukewarmth of the fight for ratification.

The plain fact is that the administration had no idea how badly it was going to feel on the morning after.

To the Democratic Voters of the City of Hope

If you want to vote for the winner, vote for Albert Graves for Mayor. It is generally conceded that he will be elected by an overwhelming majority. We predict that Wednesday's Star will carry headlines about as follows:

"Albert Graves Wins Mayor's Race. Gets Majority of All Votes Polled. No Run-Off."

We urge all his friends and supporters to go to the polls and vote for him and work for him. See that your neighbor goes to the polls and votes for him. Come on and let's make his majority as big as possible!

He is twenty-five years of age. He was born and raised here, and we know him and are proud of him and his record. He is young, active, progressive, and of good sound judgment; and his character and integrity are unquestioned. YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

People On Relief Get More Balanced Diet

People on relief are getting a better selection of the right kinds of food for their health than are many of us who are free to make up our own diets.

The baskets of food distributed to the poor each month generally contain not only the essential food requirements in the way of proteins, carbohydrates, fats, mineral salts, and vitamins, but they also meet the varying appetites of the different races or groups of people.

Not only do people on relief get a more wholesome selection of food, but they get it according to their tastes. Furthermore, the mother in each family is urged to get as much extra fruit, vegetables, eggs, and milk as she can. These are necessary for growth and repair of tissue, besides providing energy necessary to keep the body at work.

In Illinois the relief commission has developed four standard dietaries planned for seven in each family. These are divided into general, southern, Italian, and Jewish classifications. A certain amount of spaghetti is included in the dietary for each group, but macaroni appears only in the Italian and general diets, and is eliminated from the southern and Jewish diets. The Italian group also is allowed much more macaroni, as well as vermicelli.

The general, southern, and Jewish diets include two pounds of spaghetti a month, whereas the Italian list includes 15 pounds of spaghetti a month. The general diet provides quantities of navy beans, which do not appear in the southern diet. The Jewish list eliminates pork and beans, but does have a good allowance of lima beans. Moreover, the Jewish diet list includes four cans of sardines, to three in the Italian list, and two in the southern list.

In contrast to these allowances, the southern list includes four pounds of salt pork. Salt pork does not appear at all on any of the other diet lists.

Benefit to our nutrition comes not from the foods that are listed or prescribed, or even what is included in the basket delivered at the door, but from what is actually eaten. Money spent for food that is not eaten is, of course, wasted.

For this reason, it is necessary to consider the appetites of those to whom the food is served.

Ellis Island as the Immigrant Sees It

Plymouth Rock is famous because the daring immigrants from the Mayflower used it as their stepping stone to America; but Ellis Island, infinitely less romantic, actually played a far greater part in the development of the country.

Before you reply "What of it?" to that profound sentence, let me say that it is simply my way of telling you that Edward Corsi has written a book about Ellis Island. His book is called "In the Shadow of Liberty," and it is a fine, interesting story of a place which has seen about as much human drama as any spot on earth.

Mr. Corsi himself went through Ellis Island as a child in 1907. He was one of more than a million immigrants who came through the gateway in that year.

Nearly a quarter century later, President Hoover put him in charge of the place—thus bringing to the job a man who had seen the great immigrant station from the underside and knew how its wards felt about things.

He did his job admirably, and he not only tells about it in this book, but relates innumerable stories about the exciting, humorous or tragic events that the island has seen.

It makes a very absorbing bit of reading. Published by Macmillan, it retails at $3.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

Enacting Promises From Infant Called Unfair—Four-Year-Old Can't Comprehend

Bobby's mother says proudly, "He has promised me he is going to be a good boy today."

As Bobby is only four years old there is something wrong with this picture. First of all, Bobby does not know what a "good boy" is. As for a promise, he doesn't know what that is, either.

He has, of course, a general idea that there are certain things he must "not" do. And other things that he should. But the word "good" is beyond his compass. What, if something entirely new to his experience comes along and he does the wrong thing? After all, right and wrong are not only personal decisions of which he is incapable, but matters of social attitude. We all know that what is considered wrong today may be tolerated tomorrow.

And so it is in the home. Not only may a mother change her mind from day to day, but all mothers may change theirs. Don't then, put on small Bobby the bonus of being good when he has no values to go by.

Promises Imply Coercion

Promises are despicable. They imply coercion at best. The adult who cannot conduct himself circumspectly without promises is not worth the powder to blow him up. In business promises are necessary. This is a matter of economics and outside our moral argument. But all any one needs to be all he should, is to promise himself.

I like to compare these tiny children with men and women. It is what they are, in embryo. And as far as emotions and mental complexes are concerned, every bit of feeling is there that will be there later. Interest, courage, kindness, rage, hurt, regret, love, pity, selfishness. All of it. Only with this advantage, that at this age the good may be encouraged and the less worthy discouraged.

The good, however, will never be encouraged by promises or the bad discouraged either.

Bobby has been giving trouble by running away. He had promised to stay at home. He was wild about the dog at the corner. If the dog was not at home Bobby would hunt him.

Substitution Helps Again

Now it happens that his parents do not want to have a dog. So he cannot be cured that way. What could be done is to look about for some gripping interest for the little fellow that will substitute for the dog. Turn a couple of chairs over an make him a tent with a sheet. Fill up his little wagon with pots and pans from the kitchen an let him play peddler. Something different. Substitution pure and simple, of course, but the idea is just that. Help him to overcome his interest in the forbidden rather than exact promises he cannot keep.

Even mild punishment is permissible. But not the breaking of the promise. Not at his age. Even children of five and six have vague ideas of what promises really are.

Most of the troubles of early childhood arise from having too little to do of real interest. The happily busy child is seldom into things he should not be doing. They must be busy to be "good." It is our responsibility to see that they are happily occupied.

Extra Filing Fee Asked for Clerks

Borrowers of Farm Credit Administration to Be Affected

LITTLE ROCK—Circuit clerks of the state would add at least $5,000 annually to already sizable fees collected from borrowers of the Farm Credit Administration, if Senate Bill 39, by Carnes, is enacted by the legislature.

The bill would empower clerks to charge 25 cents for filing waivers of landlors' liens on crops, rents and advanced mortgages not filed as part of chattel mortgages.

The bill was passed by the senate and passed by the house with amendments, but later was recalled from the senate, where it went for concurrence in the amendments. Representative Campbell quoted Governor Futrell as saying it should have "further consideration."

The governor denied that he had requested the bill be withdrawn, but added that he "understood it had objectionable features and was primarily a clerks' bill."

More than 50,000 government loans were made to Arkansas farmers last year by agencies of the Farm Credit Administration, and of that number it was estimated that at least 20 per cent would require landlors' waivers. The waivers are necessary for tenants and sharecroppers to qualify for any one of a variety of government loans.

Circuit clerks now collect 25 cents for filing the chattel mortgage with the waiver attached.

Only the chattel mortgage and waiver of lien is required on small government crop loans, but for the larger loans handled by the Intermediate Credit Banks the circuit clerk is paid $1 for an abstract and 50 cents for a certified copy of the mortgage, making a total charge of $1.75 on each loan. The additional 25 cents provided under S. B. 39 would make the charge $2.

In addition, the clerks are paid 50 cents by the government for examining the records to determine whether any prior legal claims have been listed against the property affected. Under the present rate set-up of a minimum charge of 25 cents and a maximum charge of $2.50 on larger loans, it is estimated that circuit clerks collected in the neighborhood of $36,000 last year on FCA loans, if the average fees on loans, large and small, were 75 cents.

mute testimony to the EIGHT MILLION EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS of state "turkey" that county judges all over Arkansas have wasted in jobs given to men to move dirt.

This county has to have surfaced roads. This county has to have an organization that will get surfaced roads—before any more money is to be voted the counties by the state.

X X X
I can not understand the stupidity of a people throwing money into the county judge's office and expecting it to produce roads, when there is no other office in the state or the United States, that I know of, which has the unbridled authority of an Arkansas county judge.

You do not give money to the mayor of a city to spend without due conference and discussion. The aldermen have to agree.

You do not give money to the governor to spend as he pleases. He has to obtain consent of the legislature.

The county judge needs the help of a deliberative group, with veto powers—either through the State Highway Commission and its district offices, or through a local county road commission affiliated with the state government.

Then the state-aid money will go down on gravel roads.

We aren't fighting political personalities. We never have. We are fighting the abominable administrative system—and until it is changed, the legislature might as well quit talking about "local roads" for all we will get is some more hard words, bum roads, and a new increase in the state gas tax.

Five Brookwood students, Florence Dams, Mary Wilson, Jean Young, Jerry Smith and Nune Jean Williams assisted Mrs. Orville Erringer in telling of the work of the health committee and Mrs. Payton Enloe in the lighting of five candles, which represented the national, the state, the district and the local units and the city council.

Mrs. O. A. Graves concluded the program with a poem, "The Torch-bearer," a tribute to the founders.

A reception was held in the Home Economics cottage following the program. The guests were greeted at the door by Miss Ruth Taylor and introduced to the receiving line, which included Mesdames C. D. Lester, Edwin Dussett, J. R. Henry, Ched Hall, D. L. Bush, Walter Carter and Miss Miss Mae Milburn. Others in the house party were Mrs. C. C. Patton, Mrs. Alfred Brannon, Miss Mamie Bryant, Mrs. John Owen, assisted by the local hospitality and Founders Day chairman, and the Senior Home Economics girls who assisted in serving.

The dining room was artistically arranged with flowers and greenery. Mrs. A. C. Kolb and Mrs. Dorsey McRae poured coffee from each end of a table, which was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a huge mass of blue and yellow chrysanthemums surrounded by four lighted candles. Approximately 100 guests helped to observe Founders Day.

liceman by a robber, the latter escaping from the scene. In the Court of Errors and Appeals the case was decided solely on the point of evidence proving that the crime was committed during the commission of the lesser crime and the verdict of first degree murder upheld on that point. Justice Trenchard concurred and as the underlying felony was burglary in that case, the parallel to the Hauptmann trial is affirmed.

In the decision set forth at that time the court ruled that the prosecution must show that the death occurred before the completion of the underlying felony. In other words, the editorial points out, where the underlying felony is burglary as in the Hauptmann trial, it is incumbent that the prosecution show proof beyond reasonable doubt that death occurred before completion of that crime.

"Should the evidence show," says the editorial, "that a defendant charged with felony murder, when attempting to kidnap an infant, committed the crime of burglary in breaking and entering the home when the child, with its clothing, was carried away, it would nevertheless be essential that the evidence should show with all the certainty required for the conviction of crime, that the death of the infant occurred, or that the fatal injury was inflicted, before the completion of the crime of burglary. Lacking adequate proof of this essential element, the prosecution must fail," the editorial concludes.

Extortion Trial Next
FLEMINGTON, N. J. — If Bruno Richard Hauptmann's jury fails to reach a verdict, New Jersey will permit his return to New York for trial on an extortion indictment and delay a retrial in this state, it was learned Sunday night.

A high official revealed that New Jersey, which fought a polite but acrimonious battle with District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx for the right to try Hauptmann, will be willing, in event of the jury's disagreeing, to turn him back and postpone its second trial until the Bronx is through with him.

Should the murder jury convict, Hauptmann will need another $50,000—the exact sum collected as ransom for the Lindbergh baby—to finance an ap-

Temperance Play Here on Monday

"Who's to Blame?" Will Begin at 7:30 at the Tabernacle

A temperance drama entitled "Who's to Blame?" will be given at 7:30 Monday night at the Tabernacle (old skating rink) with 25 local characters assisted by Dr. Atticus Webb of Dallas.

The cast will meet at 6:30 at the tabernacle for a final rehearsal. The drama is in the form of a court trial, portraying conditions as they are under the new beer laws.

deal to a higher court.

This estimate was made by Lloyd Fisher, Hauptmann's local lawyer, who calculated that the cost of the defense's procuring a transcript of testimony at the trial, alone, would be $25,000. Other expenditures, without leaving much for compensation of Hauptmann's four lawyers, would add another $25,000, to the cost of an appeal from a death or life imprisonment verdict. All Hauptmann's legal advisers frankly admit that the $50,000 is nowhere in sight.

Another Alligator Found in Small Pool

The second alligator to be found in small pools of water over the county was brought to The Star office Monday by Raymond, R. T. and Ole Porter, youthful negro brothers. The alligator measured 32 inches. It was captured in a small pond a mile north of Hope.

Sam Schooley captured an 18-inch alligator Friday in a small pool near Blovin.

The Townsend measure, which promises to restore prosperity by the payment of a $200 a month government pension to every citizen over 60—with the condition that the cash be spent within 30 days—were correspondingly downcast.

The political blackjack which the boys used in giving the Townsend bill its final quietus was far from being the most delicate of political weapons. But it was highly effective and congressmen, deluged with thousands of letters from voters who have relatives over 60 and who would be eligible to $200 cash per month, bedeviled by the petitions of the Townsend clubs, quaking with the jitters at the thought of a radio appeal similar to the Father Coughlin broadcast which killed off the world court measure, are not particularly choosy when it comes to grabbing up the club closest to hand.

In this case, it was the old color line, dear to the hearts of Southern legislators which was used to batter down the brain child of California's Dr. Townsend.

Every Southern congressman was asked Sunday to consider the economic result of paying $200 a month to every negro person in his district who has passed the age of 60. It was driven home to each one that the Townsend act would be administered by federal agents, and the state or county authorities would be prohibited from drawing any color line and that $200 dropped each month into a Mississippi or Georgia cabin would be sufficient to feed a score of mouths—hence raising the wage scale of negro farm and factory help.

So effective was the argument that the sponsor of the bill—pool laureate of California, John C. McGroarty, silver haired congressman from Tujunga—after a few interviews with his brother members of the house, quietly and sadly admitted the impossibility of obtaining enough signatures to the petition to force the bill out of committee to the floor of the house.

To the Democratic Voters of the City of Hope:

It now appears from what everyone tells me that there is no question about my election. On every hand they tell me that I will get a majority of all votes cast, and that there will be no run-off. I take this opportunity of thanking all of my friends for all they have done for me, and will continue to do for me, until the victory is won. My friends are urged to keep up the good work until the election is over and make my majority as large as possible.

I have made no promises to anyone about any appointment or recommendation to any job, position, or office, and will not do so until after I am elected. I am going in with my hands untied.

I have made no promises of any kind except that there will be no sale, lease, or disposal of the water and light plant while I am Mayor, and that I will at all times do what I think is right and for the best interest of the City.

Filipino's Future Reported Gloomy

Independence Issue Not Yet Settled, Says Senate Commission

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Congress suddenly found the Philippine independence issue back on its doorstep with return of the senatorial mission from Manila Friday.

The senatorial mission, headed by Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, brought back a gloomy report from the Far East, indicating the Philippine independence issue is far from settled as claimed by congress last year following passage of the McDuffie-Tydings independence law.

Senator Tydings was fairly optimistic that the islands could work out their problems in the 10-year transition period afforded by the law. Senators McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, and Gibson, Republican, Vermont, however, saw the independence venture headed for economic and political disaster long before it even became an accomplished fact.

McKellar and Gibson both agreed with the recent speech of Commissioner Guevara in the house here that Japan was a grave economic menace to the islands, and approved his suggestion for a protectorate.
